No. 484.—The following resolution and notifications of the Government of India are republished:—

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION.

RESOLUTION.

No. 2014/1913.

Made, the 19th August 1913.

RESOLUTION.—By the Government of India, Department of Education.

The Government of India have recently had under their consideration the position of the Sanitary Commissioner with the Government of India and the question as to what changes are necessary in the functions and duties of the appointment as to increase its utility and efficiency.

In 1904 the officers of the Director-General, Indian Medical Service, and Sanitary Commissioner with the Government of India, which had been constituted in 1903, were again appointed as it was considered necessary to have a single and an entirely expert with the Government of India in consequence of—

- (1) the proposals for the reorganization of the Sanitary Department throughout India made in the Report of the Plague Commission of 1901;
- (2) the rapid development of sanitation throughout the country, emphasizing the need for specialization in this connection; and
- (3) the necessity for expert advice in the organization and direction of research following the establishment of bacteriological laboratories in India.

The Government of India had originally proposed that the Imperial Sanitary Commissioner should be subordinate to the Director-General, Indian Medical Service, who, however, would not ordinarily interfere in individual sanitary questions, but should be the officer of the Government of India, who could deal with efficiency and despatch of business and be better suited to the Sanitary Commissioner had no independent position, and that consequently, and as a solution between the two offices could be secured without formally subordinating the one to the other.

A separate appointment of Sanitary Commissioners with the Government of India was therefore made and in 1905 and 1906 the (Provincial) Governments were directed to the Home Department vide Nos. 1773-1253, dated the 31st September 1905. The appointments were held concurrently by the Sanitary Commissioner with the Government of India, the Director-General, Indian Medical Service, was appointed to hold charge of the duties of the Sanitary Commissioner in addition to his own duties.

As the situation of the entire question was carefully considered by the Government of India with special reference to certain drawbacks which had resulted from the action regarding the appointment of Director-General, Indian Medical Service, and Sanitary Commissioner. They were situated in particular that the Director-General, Indian Medical Service, and Sanitary Commissioner had led to loss of administrative efficiency and to the independence of the specialized bacteriological and Sanitary Departments. Increasing difficulty was experienced in equipment, and the closer co-ordination of research and practice appeared essential if any rapid progress was to be made in the improvement of public health and the prevention of disease. Moreover the claims on the Sanitary Commissioner's time of office and bacteriological work on short the period of touring, and rendered it difficult for him to be in contact with the local authorities as was desirable.

After consultation with the Secretary of State and local Governments it has now been decided that a remedy for the defects of the existing system has been provided by a systematic re-organization of the functions of the Sanitary Commissioner and the appointment, his functions, have revised on the same basis as regards designation, pay and term of service as before.

With a view to secure the better co-ordination and co-operation of the Sanitary and Medical Departments, it has been decided that the Sanitary Commissioner shall in future be subordinate to the Director-General, Indian Medical Service, in the future originally recommended by the Government of India in 1904, and that work connected with bacteriological research shall also be placed directly under the latter officer.

In regard to administrative questions and matters affecting the personnel of the sanitary services the Sanitary Commissioner will be in the position of a staff officer to the Director-General, Indian Medical Service. He will be given independent authority in technical sanitary matters with power as at present to correspond direct with the Government of India. He will occupy the position in regard to local Governments and the officers under them laid down in paragraph 12 of the Sanitary No. 1773-1253, dated 31st September 1905. In order to relieve him of as much routine work as possible, the office subordinates of the Sanitary Commissioner and the Director-General, Indian Medical Service, will be augmented. The Sanitary Commissioner will, in future, assist the Director-General, Indian Medical Service, in the control of the sanitary section of the office as well as in the guidance of research work and the bacteriological Department. He will also act as "Publicity" and "Sanitary Measures" under the direction of the Director-General, Indian Medical Service (Sanitary). The Sanitary Commissioner will, under these arrangements, be able to move freely and regularly throughout India with a view to see and supervise the local developments, to inspect works of sanitation actually in progress, to advise on proposed schemes and generally to disseminate the knowledge acquired in the different provinces.

The statement attached to this Resolution contains details of grants which have been made in recent years from Imperial Revenue towards sanitation and research. In every province important schemes for the improvement of urban sanitation are now in course of execution. A preliminary survey has been in progress in several provinces with a view to the preparation of schemes designed to effect the improvement of urban sanitation in particular to improve if possible the insanitary insanitary in selected areas. Projects are now ready in some of these provinces, and grants are being made for their execution from Imperial Revenue. The data thus obtained will, it is hoped, be of great great value in planning future preventive measures. The important questions of controlling and regulating the expansion of present towns, and of strengthening the existing pattern of land utilisation in dealing with congested urban areas are ripe for consideration and discussion and the Government of India have recently addressed local Governments on these subjects. A scheme for the general reorganisation of the sanitary services throughout India has received the sanction of the General Board, and with the introduction of a trained staff a general improvement in the condition of urban sanitation may reasonably be expected. A wide sphere of useful work, therefore, lies before the Sanitary Commission as an advisory authority, and the Government of India believe that the appointment of a full-time officer will be of increased benefit to themselves and to local Administrations.
